YOUR GARAGE

It is sound economy and a wise investment to give your car the protection a well constructed garage affords. In addition, a garage adds appreciably to the appearance and the value of your property. The wide variety of designs in this book, presented for your consideration, are modern in appearance and construction, utilizing every opportunity for economies in construction. Suggestions are also given for using part of the garage for storage, a workshop or other uses that are particularly adapted to the space it affords.

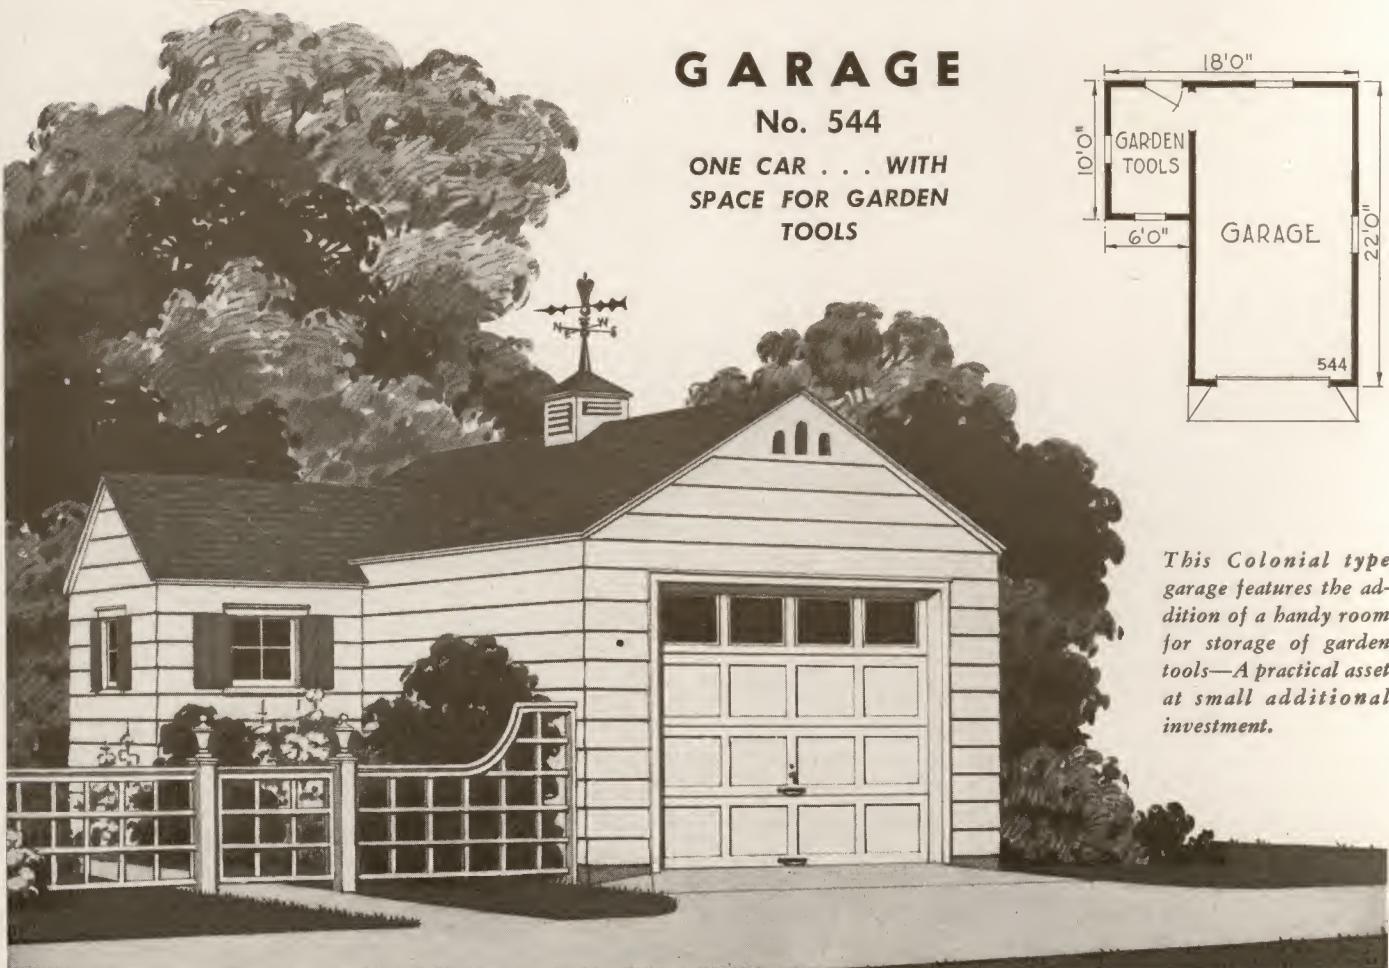

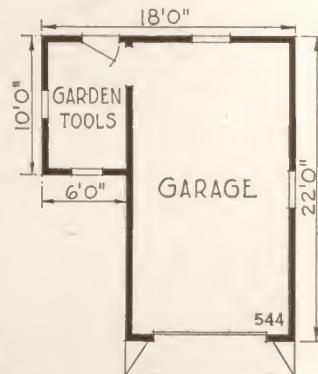

In choosing your garage, bear in mind the appearance of your home and select one in harmony with its architecture. Also consider a breezeway. The present day trend is toward the wide, rambling effect and if your lot is large enough to accommodate it, a breezeway connecting the house and garage is a most economical way to achieve it.

We shall be happy to help you select the garage most suitable to your requirements; our experience in building, as well as our entire facilities are at your disposal.

No. 545 TWO-CAR

FIVE feet have been added to the depth of this attractive two car garage to provide space for tool or garden implement storage and a large porch as well. The porch is an ideal outdoor play room for youngsters and is a protected work area for the home handy man.

GARAGE for your CAPE COD or COLONIAL Home

No. 546
ONE-CAR

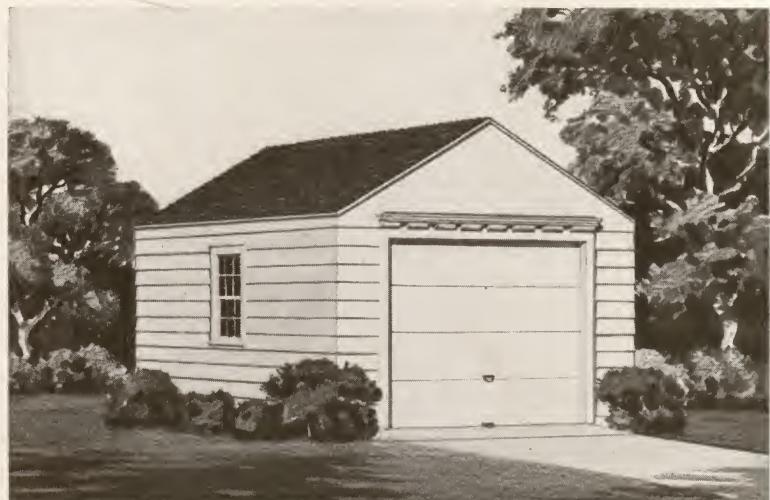

THE gable roof and the design of the garage doors with their ornamental hardware indicate the Cape Cod origin of this garage design. It is suitable for construction with almost any type of Colonial home.

No. 547
ONE-CAR

THE decorative entrance of this modified Colonial garage design does not add appreciably to its cost, but gives it an interesting appearance and decided individuality. The garage door is the overhead type. See Page 8 for other door designs.

No. 548
TWO-CAR

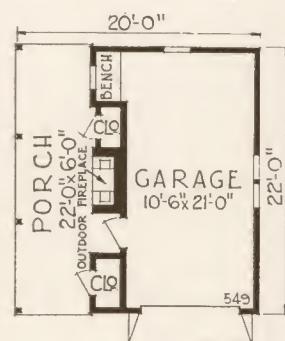

THE cupola, shuttered windows, decorative hardware on the doors, the trellis and the roof overhang at the entrance are all attractive features of this two car garage that disguise its utilitarian purpose.

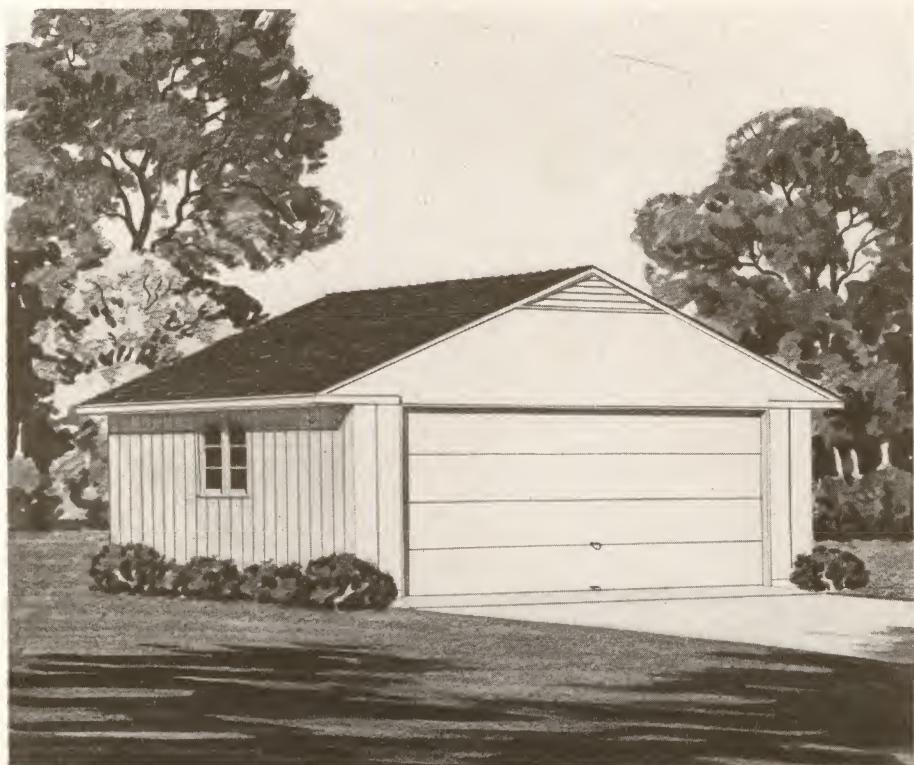

.... to match your RANCH Home

No. 549
ONE-CAR

DESIGNED to harmonize with Ranch house architecture, this garage features an open fireplace in an outdoor haven. The large porch is ideal for outdoor dining and two closets are provided for tools, work clothes and other items that will save much "cleaning up" in the house. Inside the garage, directly under a window is a built-in work bench.

No. 550
TWO-CAR

THE combination of flush and vertical siding and the overhang of the roof are architectural features that make this two car garage especially suitable as a companion building to your Ranch house. Note the economical double door and simple rectangular construction.

No. 554
ONE-CAR

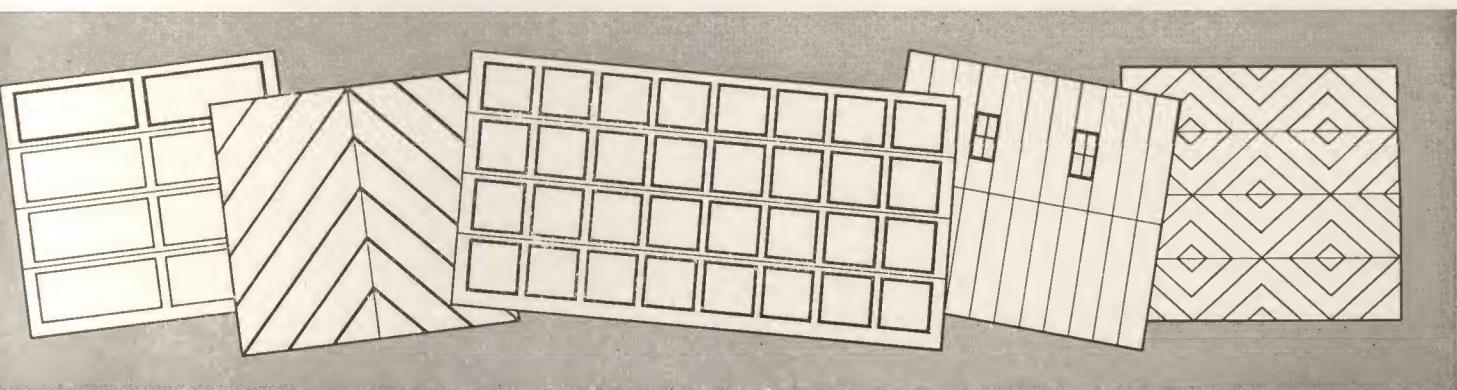

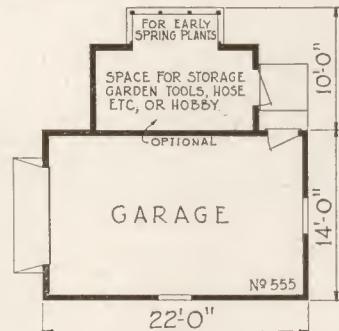

A combination garage, utility room and hobby house.

This attractive one car garage is modified Colonial in design. The shuttered windows at the side of the door, and the interesting extension of the front gable, add much more to its beauty than their cost.

No. 555
ONE-CAR

BASICALLY this is a one car garage but the introduction of additional features into the plan adds greatly to its interest and attractiveness. The addition may be added at a later date.

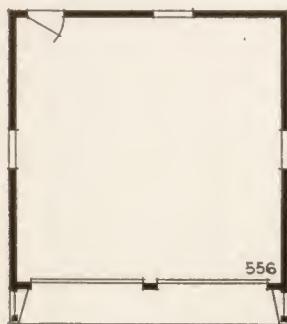

GARAGES in Colonial Motif . . .

No. 556
TWO-CAR

SIZES

Plan A.....20 Ft. x 20 Ft.
Plan B.....22 Ft. x 22 Ft.

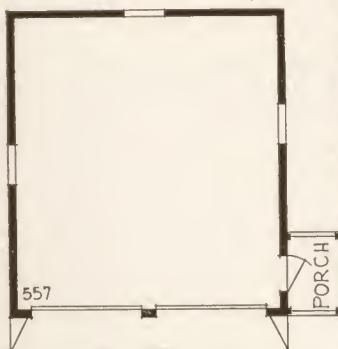

THE small additional investment in building a two car garage will be returned many times over in convenience and utility. In the above design note the roof cupola, trellis work and shutters which do so much to enhance the appearance and yet are not prohibitive in cost.

No. 557
